

Poliir

Written by Serenity

Tuesday, 08 January 2008 18:02 -

Nothing more defines the poliir than the mystical code they live by. Good or evil, the poliir is willed to act by no creature. Poliirs are defined by their sense of inner self, and thus only act to fulfill their own self defined code.

As a class, the poliirs have incredible defensive powers, so strong that they have been rumored to stand alone at the top of defensive prowess amongst classes. But poliirs are not without offensive, in fact their primary defense is what grants them such overwhelming offensive strength.

Odd, it is, that such a powerful defense could be coupled with such an unearthly offense within a single code driven class. Know this, the poliir is a deadly warrior when awoken to their full power. Such that few can stand against them in battle. Woe to those who stand between these devoted fighters and their ultimate goal, whatever that may be.